SUMMER FUN FOR FAMILY: Keep Your Kids Active

Summer break can cause a panic in parents. It doesn't matter if you're working full time or at home with the kids, the fears are the same: you don't want your children to spend their summer in front of the TV all day or texting as their only means of communication with the rest of the world.

Parents can keep their kids' minds stimulated by trying any one these activities:

Make reading a daily habit. Children learn when their brains are active, even if they're reading fun and easy books.

Enroll them in local summer programs. Schools or community programs often sponsor events and activities to keep kids engaged.

Use the television to your advantage. Make sure educational programs are part of their routine. Examples: National Geographic, Animal Planet and Discovery Channel.

Make sure your child's summer is filled with physical activities. Children need 60 minutes of physical activity each day, including aerobic and muscle strengthening activities, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Sign your child up for local recreational or sports programs. Churches, community centers and schools usually host events throughout the summer. Let your child choose what interests them. They may even try something new.

Get a pass to the local public swimming pool. Encourage your children to head up to the pool by mid-morning to avoid the heat and the crowds.

Have your child write a story over the summer months.

Host a sprinkler party with the neighborhood kids.

Work with a neighborhood organization or nursing home to do service work together as a family. Community service is a great way to keep your child active while also learning valuable lessons in philanthropy and humility.

Do a home improvement project together. You and your kids can paint a bedroom wall, repurpose old furniture or plant a garden.

Take a cooking class together. Some are designed for children as young as 10.

Tour the area museums. Plan a day trip (or longer) to some of them this summer. Most museums offer a free admission time, such as Wednesday nights or the first Friday of every month.

The best thing you can do for your kids this summer is spend time with them. The bonding, activities and relaxation will be good for them, and for you.

BROOKSIDE PARK

"Brookside Park, located in Daybreak, is a fun little park with a stream, slide down the side of the hill, zipline, beach volleyball area, and so much more.

"This is by far one of my favorite parks. It's in such a cute neighborhood and reminds me of a park right out of a perfect little neighborhood in a movie. My kid's favorite parts were the zipline and the stream. I loved the shade that was there while the kids played."

Volunteer Opportunities

Are you interested in getting more involved with the Daybreak community? LiveDAYBREAK would love to have you join their Steering Committee! The Steering Committee is a group of resident volunteers who help organize and implement all of the fantastic events at Daybreak. If you would like to join them, please attend one of their meetings - held on the fourth Thursday of each month at 6:00 pm at the Glass House. For more information, email information@livedaybreak.com.
